94th Madonna della Cava Feast

Crowds gathered for the 94th Madonna Della Cava Feast which was held over this past weekend on Hanover and Battery Streets in Boston's North End. There was dancing in the streets to live music, tantalizing food to infuse the taste buds, games and raffles and so much more. On Sunday the Grand Procession took to the streets with society members carrying the image of Maria SS della Cava, Principal Patron of Pietraperzia, Sicily, for several hours accompanied by 4 bands: St Alfio's, Northeast Italiano Band, Holy Family Defenders and Sons of Italy. Special performers included: Melissa Jane, Vinyl Groove, Cigar Authority, David Garofalo and the Beantown Swing Orchestra.

We are a Nation of Laws, Not Men

"Freedom has its life in the hearts, the actions, and the spirit of men and so it must be daily earned and refreshed — else like a flower cut from its life-giving roots, it will wither and die."

— President Dwight D. Eisenhower

What a great analogy to express what the gift of freedom is. When America started, its roots were right here in Boston where it all began. Ben Franklin is often quoted as having said to a lady as he exited Independence Hall after the Constitution was passed, "We now have a Republic if we can keep it."

Daniel Webster once opined, "There is no nation on earth powerful enough to accomplish our overthrow. Our destruction, should it come at all, will be from the inattention of the people to the concerns of their government."

Government is our business. It doesn't get any more personal than that. Either we run it or it runs us. Recently, both up here and down in Texas, I read letters to the editor from the "BLAME BUSH" crowd who never give up.

A letter writer in the Austin American Statesman criticizes a previous letter writer who bashed President Obama by stating, "He is just another immature American adult who can't accept the fact that Barack Obama is still our president and

ROBIN WILLIAMS

(July 21, 1951 – August 11, 2014)

by Ivanha Paz

Last Monday, August 11th, the world lost one of its most talented. Robin Williams, 63, actor and comedian, passed away after a lifelong struggle with depression and addiction. You wouldn't have known this judging from his exemplary career in which he proved to be skilled, versatile and extremely successful. From being the charming and funny Genie in "Aladdin" to a distinguished teacher and mentor in the classic "Dead Poets Society," Williams did it all. He appealed to a very wide audience, most of whom would never have guessed the internal battle he faced most of the time. Those who have worked with him have said that he was always professional, always on time and always a pleasure. Although, he did include the darker parts of his life, satirically, in his comedy sketches.

Williams' big break came about when he starred in "Mork and Mindy" (1978-1982), a spin-off sitcom from an earlier show, "Happy Days," in which Williams played the alien Mork. His witty and improvised sense of humor led the character to become a great success. Since then he has appeared on television in numerous comedy shows including his own HBO comedy specials and sitcoms. Besides his television career, Williams also had an extensive film career, with starring roles in well-known titles such as "Mrs. Doubtfire," "Patch Adams," "Good Will Hunting," "Hook," and several others.

Williams left behind a wife and three children. His death has sparked a mass reaction on social media, he is collectively missed.

HEMERA, AETHER AND CHARON

Primordial goddess of the day Hemera (1881).
By William-Adolphe Bouguereau

Last week we discussed two of the most famous poets in ancient Greece, Homer and Hesiod. They were responsible for giving us more information on the folklore of mythical gods and legendary heroes than all other writers combined. We identified Chaos, the yawning abyss which marked the beginning of all things. Out of Chaos came the “Primary Beings” Nyx (Night); Erebus

A 19th-century interpretation of Charon's crossing.
By Alexander Litovchenko

(Primeval Darkness), and Gaea (Mother Earth). Today our discussion of the Primary Beings continues with Hemera (Day); “dies,” or “dies civilis” as the ancients referred to it. This was the time in which the sun completed a course around the earth, including both day and night. In Athens the civil day began with the setting of the sun, in Rome it began at midnight, and in Babylon it began at sunrise. During the time of the Homeric poems, the natural day was divided into three parts. The first part began with sunrise and it included that whole time in which the light seemed to be getting brighter. The second was what we call mid-day, during which time the sun appeared to be standing still. The third part, of course, was the remainder of the daylight hours. Many years later the first part was subdivided into early and late morning, while the third part was subdivided into early and late afternoon.

Hermea was followed by Aether, the pure light that is imagined to be in the highest reaches of the atmosphere, and what we now call outer space. This was considered to be the light of the gods.

Charon was also a god of the lower world, but he ruled in a much different capacity than Erebus. Charon conducted the souls of the dead across a river called “Styx” (or Acheron) by boat to the infernal regions that we imagine to be Hell or Purgatory. A fee of at least one obolus (minor value) but never more than three was extracted from each shade or ghost, as it entered the boat. A coin was generally placed under the tongue of the deceased for this purpose because the soul of any person who was not honored with a proper funeral, or was without the required fare, was not permitted to enter Charon's boat without first wandering along the shore for one hundred years.

Charon is usually represented as elderly but robust, with white bushy hair and eyes glowing like fire. He usually wore a short tunic-like garment that was stained with the dirty water and mud from the river, and he always carried a long pole or oar. The next time you visit the Sistine Chapel in the Vatican be sure to notice the lower right-hand corner of Michelangelo's Last Judgment. It shows Charon performing his daily duties as only the great master could have depicted.

During ancient times, the defeated gladiators were dragged from the arena by a person disguised as Charon, while in ancient Greece this same image was given the name of Charontas or Charos, and portrayed as a large black bird who carried its victims to the lower world of the dead — brrr.

Absentee Ballots

Now Available for September 9th Primary Election

Absentee ballots are now available for the State Primary Election, which will take place on Tuesday, September 9, 2014. Absentee voters are required to fill out a new application each calendar year. Applications may be obtained by calling the Election Department at 617-635-3767, or through the Department's website: www.cityofboston.gov/elections. If a voter is unsure as to whether or not an absentee ballot request is up-to-date, he or she should contact the Department directly. All voters are urged to file their applications as soon as possible in order to expedite the mailing of the actual absentee ballots.

As September 9th is a primary election, prospective absentee voters who are currently listed as “no party/unenrolled” must indicate, on their application, a party preference so that the correct ballot will be sent.

Absentee ballots are also available for those who wish to vote in person at the Election Department. At this time, any person voting absentee can only do so if health reasons prevent the voter from getting to the polls, the voter is out of the City of Boston all day on September 9th, or religious reasons prevent the voter from participating on primary day. Early voting in Massachusetts will not take place until 2016. To vote absentee in person, visit the Election Department in Room 241 at Boston City Hall, Monday through Friday, from 9:30 am until 4:00 pm. Additional times are available by appointment only; to make an appointment, please contact Mary Ann or Joe at 617-635-2211.

The last day to register to vote, change one's voting address, or party affiliation for the primary is August 20, 2014. The Election Department will be open until 8:00 pm that evening to accommodate registrants and those wishing to make changes. Those who wish to register or make changes by mail should make sure that their request is postmarked no later than August 20th. Massachusetts Law does not currently allow these changes to be made via email.

Questions about voting status can be directed to election@cityofboston.gov.

NATIONAL GRID LAUNCHES
“Recycle & Win!” Contest

End of Summer Promotion Encourages
Residents to Recycle Old Refrigerators

Residential electric customers of National Grid in Massachusetts have the opportunity to win a $250 prepaid debit card, just by recycling an outdated refrigerator or freezer in August or September. The new offer is in addition to an existing National Grid program that pays $50 to Massachusetts home-owners who schedule a free pickup of an old, inefficient, second refrigerator or freezer.

“With the end of summer fast approaching, it's a good time to consider ways to save energy this fall and winter and get rid of that outdated, energy-wasting fridge in your garage or basement,” said Edward White, vice president of Customer Strategy and Environmental, National Grid. “National Grid is committed to helping customers save money and energy, so we're offering a program that allows customers to recycle an inefficient device and potentially start saving for a high-efficiency ENERGY STAR appliance at the same time.”

National Grid residential electric customers in Massachusetts can schedule a free recycling appointment by calling 1-877-545-4113 or by visiting www.ngrid.com/marecycle. Refrigerators and freezers must be working and measure between 10 and 30 cubic feet (standard size for most units). A maximum of two units per household per calendar year will be accepted. Upon recycling, participants will be automatically entered into a random drawing for a chance to win one of four $250 prepaid debit cards. Checks for the $50 rebate will arrive by mail six to eight weeks after the appliances are picked up.

Recycling refrigerators and freezers creates many benefits for participating customers, the environment and community as a whole. Customers can save as much as $150 a year by having an older refrigerator or freezer hauled away. Old refrigerators contain more than 188 pounds of materials such as foam, glass, and metal that can be used in new products. Additionally, recycling just one refrigerator prevents up to 10 tons of carbon dioxide from entering the atmosphere, the equivalent of taking two cars off the road for an entire year.

The Last Judgement by Michelangelo covers the wall behind the altar in the Sistine Chapel. The work depicts the second coming of Christ and, although the artist is clearly inspired by the Bible, it is his own imaginative vision that prevails in this painting.

Saying Goodbye to Louis A. "Gigi" Capozzi

by Sal Giarratani

My friend Gigi Capozzi who lived down on Prince Street passed away unexpectedly on August 3rd. His funeral Mass was held at the Sacred Heart Church in North Square last Thursday, August 7th.

He leaves behind his wife of 60 years Florence (Sarno). He was the loving father of Claire Marrone and husband Dennis of Revere and the late Priscilla Capozzi. He was the brother of Rosemarie Capozzi of Revere and the late Aurora D'Elia and Dominic Capozzi. He was also a loving grandfather, great-grandfather and uncle to many.

Along the way, he made many friends and among them was my cousin Sal Giarratani of Beachmont. My cousin and Gigi grew up together on Prince Street going back to little kids. Both Gigi and my cousin Sal moved to Revere. Gigi came back to the North End but my cousin still lives in Revere. They would talk together often. Best of friends. Also, along the way Gigi and I became friends too. He had two Sal Giarratani's on his speed dial.

I know my cousin misses him dearly and this Sal Giarratani misses him too. He will be remembered by his family and friends as a good guy who enjoyed his life and used his time well.

Massachusetts Fallen Heroes Announce September 10th Groundbreaking for Permanent Public Memorial in South Boston

Bay State Veteran and Survivor Non-Profit Set to Break Ground on Public Memorial Featuring 50-Foot Obelisk Structure, Interactive Technology, Reflecting Pools, Water Fountains and Extensive Recreational Green Space to Honor Massachusetts Fallen Heroes

Massachusetts Fallen Heroes is proud to announce ground-breaking on September 10th, 2014 for a first-of-its-kind permanent public memorial to honor the Commonwealth's brave men and women who have lost their lives in service while fighting the War on Terror since September 11, 2001. The 50-foot memorial will be centrally located on Seaport Square Park in South Boston where patrons will have the opportunity to reflect on the sacrifices Massachusetts fallen heroes have made for this country while enjoying the multitude of recreational activities to be offered at the park.

"After years of planning a permanent public tribute to honor our Massachusetts heroes who have made the ultimate sacrifice for our country, it is a great honor to announce its groundbreaking for the day prior to the 13th anniversary of September 11, 2001," said Executive Director Dan Magoon. "In our ongoing fight to aid local veterans and their families, we aim to set the standard here in Massachusetts for how our lost loved ones and veterans should be forever honored and we hope this memorial inspires similar tribute throughout the country."

The permanent public memorial will be constructed on Seaport Square Park, a 1-acre park comprising a portion of the forthcoming 23-acre Seaport Square Development in South Boston. The Mass Fallen Heroes memorial groundbreaking will coincide with the organization's customized license plate initiative, which is currently being offered to the public at www.massfallenheroes.org.

Mass Fallen Heroes teamed with Seaport Square Developer John Hynes and Boston Global Investors, Hacin + Associates, designer James Carpenter and Reed Hilderbrand (Landscape Architect) to conceptualize the 50-foot obelisk. Day and night, the five-sided translucent structure will present an engaging sense of light as the sun is captured and reflected across Seaport Green and will transition to an internally lit beacon during the evening hours. The memorial will also feature an indoor interactive room housing artifacts and memorabilia that veterans of post 9/11 conflicts brought home from battle.

L'Anno Bello: A Year in Italian Folklore

Ferragosta: Italy's Summer Festival

by Ally Di Censo Symynkywicz

During this time of the year, as the pleasant and golden August days roll lazily along like a hay barrel, I can feel the pulse of transition underneath my feet. Despite the hot temperatures that guide me into the cool waters of a swimming pool and the sense of carefree vacation that permeates the air, I know that autumn is approaching. The signs are everywhere. I sense autumn in the skies that turn dusky around seven-thirty, the glossy apples that line groceries in waves of green and red, the bustle to get everything ready before school starts — even Halloween decorations begin to smile from store shelves! However, I remain determined to enjoy every last bit of my summer vacation before the school bell rings in September. For that, I look to Italians for inspiration. Italy's biggest summer holiday occurs on August 15th, though celebrations extend to the weeks before and after the date. It is called Ferragosto, and Italians honor it by leaving the cities in droves and spending time relaxing by the beach or at the mountains. As we find ourselves caught between the hazy summer days and the pulsating rhythm of the autumn to come, Ferragosto teaches us to relax and live in the moment.

Visiting Italy in August feels akin to touring an enchanted kingdom bewitched into silence through a mystical spell. Oh, yes, many tourists abound, as always. However, many Italians flee the cities and their sweltering heat at the beginning of the month, taking their Ferragosto vacations until the festival culminates on the 15th. It can be quite an experience to walk around a city like Rome, and stepping outside of the normal tourist haunts, noticing that a number of shops, theaters and restaurants are closed and boarded up. The Italian coastline, on the other hand, resembles a rainbow of colorful beach umbrellas and excited sunbathers stretching on the sand or jumping headfirst into ocean waves. Ferragosto has become so associated with trips to the beach in Italy that people exchange greeting cards for the holiday emblazoned with smiling watermelons or burning suns peeking over the horizon. Elsewhere, Ferragosto is celebrated with family feasts in shady backyards featuring August produce like tomatoes, peppers, zucchini and herbs. So where did this significant Italian holiday come from? Actually, the history of Ferragosto stems back to the year 18 B.C., when Roman emperor Augustus established the Feriae Augusti — Augustus's Festivals — in honor of his reign. Scholars suspect that the original Ferragosto replaced older feasts like the Vinalia rustica which commemorated the grape harvest. For all its modern decadence, Ferragosto is at heart a celebration of the changing seasons.

August 15th holds a unique importance for Italians: it is L'Assunzione, or the Feast of the Assumption. This religious holiday observes the Virgin Mary's ascent into Heaven. All across Italy, towns and villages incorporate L'Assunzione into their Ferragosto festivities by holding parades and processions where statues of the Virgin Mary are held aloft. The old medieval city of Siena holds the Palio, or the world-famous horse race where participants are decked out in Renaissance garb, during this time. Elsewhere around Europe, the Feast of the Assumption also serves as a seasonal marker reminding people that it is time to start the harvest. In Armenia, farmers bring their harvested grapes to church on the Sunday closest to the Assumption for a special blessing. People in Poland, who know the Virgin Mary of the Assumption as the Blessed Mother of the Herbs, bring freshly gathered herbs to churches for a blessing, and later display these herbs around their home for protection. I too will honor the herb harvest this Assumption Day by making cheesy biscuits studded with chives, a simple recipe that includes the wheat and the plants of Mother Earth. The aroma will remind me that August is far more than a month that heralds the end of summer vacation in modern society; rather, it is a time to appreciate the harvest and bounty that signaled the survival of our ancestors.

The Italian August festivities of Ferragosto and L'Assunzione teach us to honor the natural world around us and also to live in the moment. As August nears its end, we may be worried about returning to school, or work, or about the upcoming cold weather of the autumn and winter. Yet Ferragosto is all about carving time for ourselves, to take moments devoted to family and friendship, joy and celebrations, the splash of ocean waters and life-bringing qualities of the summer sun. Meanwhile, L'Assunzione pays special attention to the seasonal challenges beautifully unfolding during August, and the growing bounty of the harvest. To hold the special meanings of these holidays in our heart is to appreciate the cycle of the year and all the blessings it infers upon us.

P.S. Happy Birthday to my father, Rocco Di Censo, who was born the day after Ferragosto!

THINKING OUT LOUD

by Sal Giarratani

Democrats Fundraising on Impeachment Threat

Fundraising pitches by the Democratic National Committee and other Democratic PACs are using the specter of impeachment as a way to dig into the pockets of liberal Democrats who love drinking their favorite Kool-Aid drinks.

Speaker John Boehner and the Republican House have decided to sue President Obama for his overreach with executive orders to get around the legislative process. Most Republicans and Democrats don't see this lawsuit as being relevant. To me, it is just a way for Boehner to get the Tea Party wing off his back. They keep saying do something, and so he does something.

Former Speaker Nancy Pelosi knows the Democrats are in big trouble in the mid-term elections. Most polls show Republicans gaining additional House seats and probably taking back the Senate. Pelosi knows this would be very negative for Democrats in Obama's last two years in office. Whatever Obama is going to do, he'll have to do it in a hurry because if the GOP landslide comes, Obama is not only a lame duck, but he will be wingless too.

The last thing Pelosi and Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid want is a full Republican Congress. Reid will be powerless and Pelosi will continue to spin in the wind.

A number of radical Republicans and far right conservatives are talking silly stuff like a coup d'état by Obama. These people are drinking their own favorite Kool-Aid drinks, too.

As far as impeachment goes, while our president has in many ways acted law-lessly by using executive rule with that pen and phone of his, he could not be impeached today. It would be a waste of time like back in 1996 when the Republican House impeached Bill Clinton, but the Senate didn't. The climate for impeachment isn't there yet among mainstream voters. Until it is, it is stupid to proceed down that road to nowhere.

I say wait until President Obama makes the first move with his pen and phone. If he grants Amnesty to illegals by executive action because Congress failed to act themselves, then impeachment might be a drum beat away. If you add all the other scandals in the Obama Administration with amnesty for 5-6 million illegals, the public might rise up in response to a president acting like a one man army of righteousness.

If the American people start seeing Obama acting like the president that Richard Nixon always wanted to be, who knows the outcome of anything.

A strong president is respected, but a strong-armed president is feared more. Other strong presidents like Lyndon Baines Johnson knew when to hold 'em and when to fold 'em.

Democrats love impeachment talk and are trying to get ahead of it to raise more and more attention to stop the GOP from bashing them in November. Raising funds and stirring up low information voters to go to the polls seems to be their strategy. However, deep down they know that a president who uses pens and phones to do end runs around Capitol Hill could end up in deep doo-doo like Nixon and Watergate.

Sergio Franchi Summer Concert August 23rd

Music is the heart of Italians and Italian Americans. Albano Ponte Executive Director and Robert Trifiletti, Director of the Italian Center of New York City, Boston is assisting the event. The Italian Center strongly feels that talented singers should be rewarded through scholarships. Mrs. Eva Franchi wife of talented Sergio Franchi established the Sergio Franchi Music Foundation to assist in the selection of the Sergio Franchi award winners for the annual music festival. She has discovered many singers such as Tara Venditti, Michael Amante, Patrick Carfizzi, and numerous other new singers every year.

The attendance at the Sergio Franchi concert has grown to over five million people. The event is held at the Sergio Franchi Estate in Stonington, Connecticut. A tour of the Franchi home is conducted prior to the concert.

Mrs. Eva Franchi, sponsor of the Sergio Franchi Music Foundation scholarships in voice performance, has been working steadily to generate income for the scholarships in honor of her late husband. Since 1994, funding for these fellowships is attained each year at her estate, where she holds an outdoor benefit concert featuring the scholarship winners, whose musical talent permeates the Franchi estate. Dr. Maria Lombardo former Educational Director of NIAF assisted in the establishment and promoted the program for Mrs. Franchi and helped identify scholarship applicants.

Come and be swept away by the 2014 International Vocal Grand Winners. Vocalists will be accompanied by a 32-piece symphonic orchestra conducted by Jeff Domoto, and hosted by Eva Franchi.

For tickets or to make a donation, please call 860-535-9429. Proceeds of the event benefit the Sergio Franchi music awards in voice performance.

Saint Susanna

by Bennett Molinari and Richard Molinari

The church of Saint Susanna, located on the Quirinal Hill, has served as the national parish for residents of Rome from the United States since 1921. There has been a titular church (headed by a Cardinal) associated with this site as far back as 280 A.D. The current church was rebuilt from 1585 to 1603 for a monastery of Cistercian nuns.

Beneath the present floor of the church are the ruins of a Roman house that was constructed about the year 280 AD. The house was occupied by relatives of the General Gaius Aurelius Diocletian, who would become Emperor of Rome in the year 284 AD. Like the Emperor, the family was from Dalmatia or what is now modern Croatia, it included four brothers. Caius and Gaius and Gaius's daughter, Susanna who lived there and two other brothers, Maximus and Claudius, who lived elsewhere in the city, and were a part of the Roman government. The family's religious beliefs were divided. Caius, Gaius and Susanna were Christians, while Maximus and Claudius were pagans. Caius and Gaius were not only Christians, they were priests. In December 283, Caius was elected Bishop of Rome and would serve as Pope until his death in April 296. From 280 AD when the house was completed until 293 AD the house served not only as the family residence but also as a "domus ecclesia," or house church. As the Christian Church was not legally recognized by the Roman state, homes and other large private buildings belonging to Christians, served as the first churches.

After becoming Emperor in 284 AD, Diocletian adopted a form of government called tetrarchy, or divided rule. Diocletian ruled primarily in the east, and a joint Emperor, Maximian, another general who Diocletian had promoted, ruled in the west. In turn, each Emperor or "Augustus" was to appoint a junior ruler or "Caesar," who had the right to succeed him. Maximian named Constantius (the father of Constantine), and Diocletian named Maxentius Galerius. In the year 293 AD in order to guarantee Maxentius's succession, Diocletian made plans to have him marry Susanna, a member of his immediate family, in the spring of 293 AD, Diocletian announced the engagement of Maxentius Galerius to Susanna. This would lead to a family crisis and to martyrdom. The following narrative comes from a 6th century account. Susanna refused the marriage proposal that would have eventually made her empress. Her father Gaius

Mrs. Murphy . . . As I See It

Heard Boston City Councilor Sal LaMattina upset some residents of Orient Heights in East Boston when he came out for the Dunkin' Donuts drive-thru on Bennington Street. However, the Boston Zoning Board approved the move and it's good to go! Be prepared for added traffic on Bennington Street once the drive thru opens ... Eastie is saddened by the sudden passing of native East Bostonian Joanne Cardinale. Mrs. Cardinale was a true community leader and activist, and stood up for what she believed was good for Eastie and against what she thought would infringe on the people's quality of life. Joanne along with other activists kept a watchful eye over East Boston for many, many years. She will indeed be missed! ... Congratulations to Lisa Capogregio-Cappuccio of East Boston. Lisa has written a book called "Where's Marianna?" Enjoyable reading for both children and adults. The book will be especially impressive to the Italian culture as it is written in English and Italian Calabrese dialect ... Cause for concern. It was said if Steve Wynn, Wynn Resort Casino's guru didn't get the license to build a casino in Everett, it would cost the taxpayers of Massachusetts millions to clean up the land. Why are the taxpayers being held responsible??? Why isn't Monsanto Chemical being held accountable if it's their chemical seepage??? ... East Boston resident and writer for the Post-Gazette Sal Giarratani has landed two cameo roles in the movie Black Mass, based on the life of James Whitey Bulger. Giarratani will be playing an FBI agent in the 1990's and a South Boston Irish anti-busing protester back in 1974. Friends and readers will be looking forward to seeing Sal in this movie. A small part of the movie was filmed at Revere Beach ... Another vintage business has closed its doors. Tello's Clothing Store on Border Street that started on Meridian Street back in the fifties has closed. East Boston is undergoing big changes, Sonny Notos Restaurant in Central Square, formally Santoro's Subs recently sold to a Brazilian restaurant. Heard they are expected to do very well ... Governor Deval Patrick gave up on the hopes of transporting thousands of illegals to the Cape. There will be NO ILLEGAL IMMIGRANTS from Honduras, Guatemala and El Salvador! However, that doesn't mean when the distaste from voters calm down, the government won't make another attempt to bring them in! New Hampshire candidate Scott Brown said, "Americans are screened at airports, court houses and public places," yet, with the blessings of Democrats, the illegals just sneak in NO QUESTIONS ASKED! ... It's a dangerous world we're living in partly due to Barack Obama's incompetency, and it's becoming much more dangerous. He's not a bad guy, JUST A BAD PRESIDENT. The once community leader from Chicago's South Side and his family lead the Life of Riley now that he's President. His pricey family getaways have included Michelle's recent $467,000 tour of Spain and a $467,000 trip to Africa, not to speak of her wardrobe that consists of dresses ranging from $3,000 and up. Insiders say the First Lady regards her husband's presidency as a personal opportunity to buy new and very expensive clothes. The Obama's are currently on a family vacation on Martha's Vineyard costing $$$$$$. Why isn't Obama in Washington doing something about the Middle East crisis, instead he's playing golf, and holding fundraisers for his party. "Barack and Michelle say "THANK YOU TAXPAYERS" for all the good times we're both having! ...

Till next time!

Charlie Thomas and the Drifters

Return to City Hall Plaza August 20

Mayor Martin J. Walsh welcomes music fans of all ages to the grand finale of the 42nd annual Dorothy Curran Wednesday Night Concert Series on City Hall Plaza with Rock and Roll Hall of Fame inductee Charlie Thomas performing the songs of the Drifters on August 20th at 7:00 pm.

The series is presented by Mayor Walsh, the Mayor's Office of Tourism, Sports, and Entertainment, and the Boston Parks and Recreation Department in partnership with title sponsor Bank of America. Additional support is provided by media sponsor the Boston Herald and night sponsor Michael Francis Cahill Fund/City of Boston.

Charlie Thomas is a Dorothy Curran Wednesday Night Concert Series favorite who earned his place in music history as a member of the Drifters, the group that placed 37 records on the Billboard national R&B charts. Twenty-five Drifters songs reached the Top 10, with 5 making it to #1.

Thomas carries on the group's legacy by performing such Drifters classics as "Dance With Me," "This Magic Moment," "Some Kind of Wonderful," "Under the Boardwalk," and more.

Tradition Runs Sky High at New York’s Giglio Feast

by Christian A. Guarino

The Giglio Tower

Members of Boston’s Saint Anthony Society participate in the lifting and dancing of the Giglio.

American tradition, the Feast of the Giglio (Lily) in honor of Saint Anthony of Padua. Over the past two years, the organizations have bonded by participating in each other’s festivals.

The history of the festival in the United States can be traced back to the early 1900s when immigrants from Brusciano, a city on the slopes of Mount Vesuvius just outside of Naples, first came to the United States. With them they brought pieces of their way of life from their homeland, chief among them the tradition of the Giglio.

The festival lasts four days, beginning on Thursday and culminating on Sunday with the lifting and dancing of the Giglio tower. Starting at 2 o’clock on Sunday afternoon, the Giglio band and vocalists singing traditional Neapolitan songs which are situated at the foot of the tower, were lifted onto the stout shoulders of members of the East Harlem Giglio Society and many other devotees of the Saint.

At one time, East Harlem boasted what is believed to be the largest Italian-American community in the United States. Today, through gentrification, the section no longer maintains a strong Italian feel, however during those four days in August, the descendants of the original immigrants from Brusciano meet to bring back a piece of their neighborhood’s past. “We have the same pride, passion, and devotion our ancestors from Brusciano had when we dance the Giglio di Sant’ Antonio” said Phil Bruno, whose grandfather Gioacchino Vivolo was the original Capo Paranza, a title given to the person in charge of the lifters and who leads the parade while shouting out instructions to the carriers. The traditional order is in the form of four commands spoken in the Bruscianese dialect. “Uagliu!” (Boys!); “Aizate e Spalle!” (Lift your shoulders!); “Acconge e cosce!” (Tighten your legs); “Aggiel!” (Drop it!) At the last order, the men bend their knees down causing the Giglio to land on the pavement with a terrific thud.

“It is amazing that after 100 years, the friendships that we made throughout our lives in this neighborhood, and the love for this tradition is the glue that keeps the Festa going in East Harlem.”

“A Night at the Old Manse”

“A Night at the Old Manse” on Thursday, July 10th drew 140 friends of The Trustees of Reservations, the world’s oldest land trust and one of Massachusetts’ largest conservation and preservation non-profits. Built in 1770, this National Historic Landmark was home to Ralph Waldo Emerson and other leaders of Concord’s political and social revolutions and the Transcendentalist movement. The event’s honorary co-chairs were Nancy Nelson, superintendent of Minute Man National Historical Park, and Christopher Lydon, host of WBUR’s Radio Open Source. Guests enjoyed rum punch and hors d’oeuvres provided by Pepper’s Catering in the apple orchard on the banks of the Concord River overlooking the historic North Bridge. A surprise skirmish between 6th Middlesex Regiment and Red Coats announced the conclusion of cocktail hour. Guests were welcomed by David Croll, Chair of the Board of Directors, and Barbara Erickson, President + CEO of The Trustees. Over dinner, Sukey Forbes and Alec Forbes Emerson offered readings of their great-great-great-grandfather Emerson’s poetry before a lively auction was led by Karen Keane, CEO of Skinner auction house. The auction included unique Trustees experiences like a private campout on Misery Island and VIP experiences on Martha’s Vineyard and Crane Estate in Ipswich. The event raised nearly $100,000 in support of The Trustees’ work protecting and caring for more than 100 exceptional properties in Massachusetts.

Socially Scene

by Angela Cornacchio

A painter's splash of fashion showed last week when Alistair Archer designs created by artist Robert F. Merton hit the Bond runway. (Photo by Angela Cornacchio)

Socially Scene Reviewed ...

This past week Bond Boston resumed their "Timeless Tuesdays" fashion show, but this one with a twist of a painter's pattern.

The evening featured well-known painter, who has now taken his brush to the sewing room and created his own identity on the runway. Alistair Archer evolved from the unique experience of its founder, Robert F. Merton, a contemporary painter who has exhibited his artwork in Boston, Miami, New York and Washington, D.C.

The night started off with some of Boston's most fashionable sipping cocktails and enjoying the complimentary Aperitivo Peroni that is always a part of the show. Backstage was AGW makeup dolling up the Dynasty models to blend well with the fantastic wearable art that rocked the Bond runway.

Some of the first looks shown were simple cut dresses that caught attention with colors of vibrant turquoise blue, deep poppy purples and a design that had you thinking you were bidding at an art show. The casual dress suitable for the office also came in a stunning orange and pink combination toned down with that brilliant turquoise color.

To compliment these beautiful styles and take them into a different season were similar style rain jackets with matching umbrellas and solid boot color as to not make the outfit busy on the eye. Every few models or so one would walk with a complex painting by the designer that demanded attention itself and had each wondering if they were buying a dress, jacket, painting or just the whole package!

The story behind this fashion and art guru is warm and inspiring just like his collection. The premature birth of his first son, Archer, served as the catalyst for change. Life became the priority, both literally and metaphorically, so Merton had absolute faith in redirecting his own path to become Archer's primary caregiver.

Before entering toddlerhood, it was clear that Archer needed the focused love: his dyspraxia, a motor planning issue, made verbalizing nearly any sound an arduous task and the related weakness in manual fine motor skills made sign language impossible. Father-son communication focused on art: sitting side-by-side on the painting studio floor, Merton and Archer listened to music and created large, free-form abstract art.

To Merton's surprise, Archer influenced his own paintings as much as vice versa; Merton's subsequent work included luminous and textured rich jewel tones that communicate his passion for life and serve as the basis for all of the Alistair Archer textile patterns.

Alistair Archer targets a highly successful female population who balances strong responsibility in the workplace, family and community. Their clothing and accessories are "wearable art" that may be worn in layers as well as individually. The designs range from complex, colorful images to bold, geometric patterns, with titles embodying femininity, such as Chloe, Citron and Blythe. Much like the artist wielding a paintbrush, the clothing serves as a canvas for savvy women and may be enjoyed for generations to come.

The 2014 collection featured a dress line that dazzled everyone in the audience with the unique presentation and a fun appeal. Timeless Tuesdays are always a great production but this specific show was one to remember.

Fashion is about expressing yourself and creating looks to suite your target audience, yet this designer found a way to appeal to many. You can shop online at www.alistairarcher.com, view more of his collections and art and see upcoming shows.

Boston Local Food Festival ... Returns for its 5th annual Festival on Sunday, September 14th from 11:00 am - 5:00 pm on The Rose Kennedy Greenway.

This year is going to be bigger and better than the last with tents upon tents of Boston's best. Listed below are highlights to see what Chef Demo and Do-It-Yourself Stages are going to be on site.

Chef Joe Gatto is a personal chef and the star of a new show, From Scratch, where everything is made completely from scratch — no shortcuts! On his show, which has been described as "equal parts Alton Brown and MacGyver with a splash of Epic Meal Time thrown in," you'll learn to make mouth-watering homemade cuisine all on your own.

Bacon? He will break down a whole hog, smoke it and cure it. Flour, he grinds his own to make pasta. Butter, he milks a cow and makes it! Chef Gatto cannot wait to demonstrate his fresh tamale recipe at the festival, where he will be shooting the last bits of the Mexican segment for From Scratch!

Dr. P.K. Newby is a serious home cook; with some serious credentials (she received her doctorate in Public Health from Harvard University)! After cooking in a local vegetarian restaurant and in various other restaurants for ten years, P.K. now brings in a unique, science-based perspective to her food. At this year's festival, P.K. will demonstrate healthy cuisine with a focus on bringing principles of sound, science and sustainable eating to people's plates in delectable ways.

Throughout her demonstration, P.K. will be discussing nutrition, sustainable eating, and avoiding food waste — all while making fabulous food. If you want recipes that not only look and taste good, but also make you feel good, check out her blog at blog.pknewby.com/

The Do-It-Yourself Stage at this year's festival would not be complete without the help from Kitchensurfing. Kitchensurfing is the marketplace community where

GET ON UP: THE JAMES BROWN STORY - SOUNDTRACK Polydor/UMe

This biopic of “The Hardest Working Man in Show Business” — James Brown, was a film that should have been made many years ago. Brown put his mark on the music industry beginning in 1956 with his first hit “Please, Please, Please,” and kept updating his mark with hit after hit. The film tells the story, but the music is the star — the hits just kept coming with “Out of Sight,” “I Got You,” “Try Me,” “Papa’s Got a Brand New Bag,” “It’s a Man’s Man’s Man’s World,” “The Payback,” and “Get Up (I Feel Like Being a) Sex Machine.” Several tracks are the ‘live’ versions, but all 20 cuts are infectious, as the complex film tells the story of not only Brown’s music, but also the moves and moods from the journey of his impoverished childhood to his evolution into one of the most influential figures of the 20th century. Boston fans can still remember how, in 1968, the day after Martin Luther King, Jr. died from an assassin’s bullet, the legendary soul singer performed a live televised concert at the Boston Garden, in the hopes that he could alleviate the racial tension in Boston — and he did!

REBA - ICON MCA Nashville/UMe

Hard to believe that country sweetheart Reba McEntire has been making music for over three decades, but one only has to see McEntire’s list of ‘hit’ collections to confirm. Her ability to stay strong with her music and song is testament to her dedication to country music. ‘Reba - Icon’ is eleven songs that identify this woman, her honesty, sincerity, and ability to please with her music, continues to this day. Pick your favorites from the 11 songs — I did, and came up with 11! Included are: “Little Rock,” “The Heart is a Lonely Hunter,” “Fancy,” a dynamite duet with Vince Gill on “The Heart Won’t Lie,” the humor of “Have I Got a Deal for You,” and the questioning “Is There Life Out There.” She can rock a song or swoon with a ballad, McEntire has always proved she could do it all. Additional beauties have, “How Was I to Know,” the catchy “Why Haven’t I Heard from You,” “Somebody Should Leave,” “What Am I Gonna Do About You,” and finishes with the anthem “I’m a Survivor.”

BOBBY DARIN - ICON Capitol/UMe

Walden Robert Cassotto a/k/a Bobby Darin made waves in 1958 with his single “Splish Splash,” a song that led the way to many more hits before his untimely death at 37, due to a heart condition. Darin’s life was a roller coaster, he never know his biological father, he grew up thinking his grandmother was his mother, only to find out at age 32, that the girl he believed was his older sister, was really his mother. Before his tragic death, Darin turned out a host of hits in a short time, including the musical menu on this ICON album. Enjoy, “More,” “Call Me Irresponsible,” two live performances, his classic hit “Mack the Knife” and “Beyond the Sea,” followed by “You’re the Reason I’m Living” and “18 Yellow Roses.” Darin had the ability to perform songs that hit pop, rock ‘n’ roll, folk and country music charts. The beat went on via “If a Man Answers,” “Treat My Baby Good,” his monster hit “If I Were a Carpenter,” “Simple Song of Freedom,” and the “Lady Sings the Blues” love theme “Happy.”

LINDA RONSTADT - ICON/Capitol/UMe

Linda Ronstadt was recently inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame, with impressive stats. More than 100 million records sold, with 38 Billboard Hot 100 singles, and 21 reaching Top 40, with 11 Grammy Awards, two Country Music Awards, and an Emmy Award. Music-wise she was everyone’s favorite with her golden pipes that produced songs as her #1 hit “You’re No Good,” along with “When Will I Be Loved,” “Silver Threads and Golden Needles,” “The Long Way Around,” “It Doesn’t Matter Anymore,” and “Rock Me on the Water.” Ronstadt’s collaborations were legendary as witnessed on “An American Dream” with The Nitty Gritty Dirt Band, “Different Drum” with The Stone Poneys, and “Someone Out There” with James Ingram, sandwiched around “Long Long Time” and “Tell Him I Said Hello.” Linda Ronstadt, a living legend for sure!

IN YOUR EYES - ORIGINAL MOTION PICTURE SCORE Lakeshore

Tony Morales composed the score for ‘In Your Eyes.’ Teaming up with Brin Hill on the music for the film, and using Joss Whedon’s vision for the score, resulted in this 11-song collection. Morales was able to use a hybrid of string instruments, piano sounds and a variety of electronic music to achieve the sounds to emulate suspense, and even a feeling of romantic energy. The opening track is Andrew Johnson’s “Go Get Another Dream,” trailed by Ray Beadle’s bluesy, grinding and even interesting “Temptation,” trailed by Iron & Wine’s haunting “Resurrection,” with Santigold contributing the pounding “The Riot’s Gone,” and it all comes apart with Joss Whedon’s composition “Crumblin’.” Twinbed provides the foundation for “Trouble I’m In,” Eddie Ray wrote and performs the upbeat “Glad I Found You,” Opus Orange sheds the light on “In the Dark,” and Matt Anderson offers “Fired Up.” Closing out this intriguing soundtrack is Wildlife’s frenetic “Stand in the Water” and composer Morales’ original composition “The Break Up.”

THE TEMPTATIONS BROUGHT BACK MUSICAL MEMORIES

“Benevenuti alla festa Di Saint Agrippina” the banner proclaimed over Hanover Street as the North End celebrated the 100th anniversary of the Feast to St. Agrippina of Mineo. I was there and celebrating with the society members.

The main event on Friday night was The Temptations with original member Dennis Edwards. They were on stage for over an hour singing all their great hits. The finale being My Girl from 1965. Hanover Street was packed with nearly 500 folks swaying to the music.

I thought back to 1965 too. When I was a drummer for a band named “The Silent Sirs” out of Roxbury. We did British pop and Motown and thought we were great. My brother Dominic played bass guitar and was 14 years old. I was the drummer at 17.

Beawolfe rocked the Hard Rock Café.

Then we had Skipper White and Paul Silva who were both 15. We didn’t dress as well as the Temptations but we had the sound and the dance moves. St. Agrippina’s 100th anniversary was super.

THE BOSTON MUSIC MASSACRE

On Saturday night, I travelled over to the Hard Rock Café for the Boston Music Massacre where plenty of music zombies showed up in full attire. The event started at Noon and went on until 2:00 am.

The stars of this show were definitely “Beawolfe,” an East Boston legendary rock band and their performance was simply out of this world.

SOUTH BOSTON ITALIAN PRIDE CELEBRATION

Once again this week, South Boston’s Italian Americans celebrated their Italian Pride with some great music this past Wednesday over at the M Street Park — now known as Medal of Honor Park. Michael Dutra & the Strictly Sinatra Band was great as always playing Sinatra and classic tunes from the American Songbook.

While Southie is known as being very Irish, Italians live there too with many of them being Gaelic-Garlic like yours truly.

NOW PLAYING UPTOWN & DOWNTOWN

Don't miss the band, Fleetwood Mac, at TD Garden! Check the MUSIC section for more details.

MUSIC

TD GARDEN
100 Legends Way, Boston
617-624-1050

EAGLES — September 15. The Eagles have added a concert in Boston, MA to the "History of the Eagles" tour at the TD Garden. They will perform classics spanning their career as well as songs featured in History of the Eagles, the band's acclaimed, top-selling documentary.

CHER — September 26. Cher, who is currently on her 49-city D2K Tour, will be adding 14 additional performances beginning mid-September including a return to the TD Garden on September 26th. The announcement was officially confirmed by Cher during her interview on NBC's Today Show. The D2K Tour is in support of Cher's Warner Bros. Records album Closer to the Truth which includes the No. 1 Dance hit 'Woman's World'. The tour has received rave reviews across the country.

ENRIQUE IGLESIAS AND PITBULL — September 27. Enrique & Pitbull will reunite and share the stage for an AEG Live Fall tour that will visit TD Garden in Boston, MA on Saturday, September 27th. Fast-rising Latin urban star J Balvin is confirmed as the support act. Enrique & Pitbull have come together to create a stage design that offers fans an immersive experience, a chance to get up close and personal with the artists for a once in a lifetime concert experience.

FLEETWOOD MAC — October 10. It's official! After a 16-year absence, Christine McVie will be re-joining Fleetwood Mac band mates Mick Fleetwood, John McVie, Lindsey Buckingham and Stevie Nicks as they launch the On With The Show Tour. During Fleetwood Mac's 2013 tour, the four members happily welcomed Christine back on the stage during their show at London's O2 Arena, where she performed their classic "Don't Stop" and received a wild ovation from the crowd. "It was so comfortable being back onstage with them as if no time had passed, and then we all started talking and it feels like the time is right. I'm really happy," she commented. "As far as we're concerned, she's never really left. We are overjoyed to have Christine back on stage with us," said the other members of Fleetwood Mac in a joint statement.

COLLINS CENTER FOR THE PERFORMING ARTS
100 Shawsheen Road, Andover
608-893-8863

FRANCO CORSO — October 4. If you are a fan of Andrea Bocelli, you will love Franco Corso. Dubbed "The Voice of Romance," Corso's voice runs the range of baritone to tenor and has a magical quality that seems to mesmerize his audiences. His music, which is influenced by Caruso, Andrea Bocelli, Luciano Pavarotti, and Josh Groban, will take you on a musical journey through Italy. Born and raised in Ventimiglia on the Italian Riviera, Corso began performing at private and public events throughout Italy and Europe at the age of 11. Now residing in Florida, Franco Corso has performed for Donald Trump's Mar-a-Lago Club, and to sold out shows throughout the United States.

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE
539 Washington Street, Boston
617-259-3400
www.BostonOperaHouseOnline.com

THE LION KING — September 9-October 12. Experience the phenomenon. The most eagerly awaited stage production ever to leap onto the stage. Visually stunning, technically astounding and with a musical score like none other you've ever heard. Giraffes strut, birds swoop, gazelles leap. The entire savannah comes to life and as the music soars, Pride Rock slowly emerges from the mist. See the Tony Award-winning Broadway sensation that Newsweek calls "a landmark event in entertainment." The New York Times says, "There is simply nothing else like it." Marvel at the breathtaking spectacle of animals brought to life by a cast of more than 40 actors. Wonder at the inspiration of award-winning director Julie Taymor, who created visual images for this show that you'll remember forever. Thrill to the pulsating rhythms of the African Pridelands.

REAGLE MUSIC THEATER
617 Lexington Street, Waltham
781-891-5600

www.reaglemusictheater.org
SINGIN' IN THE RAIN — Through August 17. Experience all the glitz and glamour of Hollywood's golden age: It's 1927, and Don Lockwood and Lina LaMont are the toast of the town until "talkies" come on the scene. Furthermore, Don's romance with the lovely and talented Kathy Selden only complicates things further. The result? Big romance, big song and dance numbers, and a big, splashy Hollywood ending - and it really rains on stage! What a glorious feeling, indeed! This audience favorite returns to Reagle by popular demand, featuring all the classic songs from the 1952 film, including: "Good Morning," "Make 'Em Laugh," "Moses Supposes," "Fit As A Fiddle," and "Singin' in the Rain."

COMEDY

REGENT THEATRE
7 Medford Street, Arlington
781-646-4849

www.RegentTheatre.com
MORT SAHL LIVE: AN EVENING WITH A COMEDY LEGEND — August 22 and August 24. Crowned as leading the new breed of modern comedians by Time magazine in 1960, Mort Sahl was the first entertainer ever to appear on its cover. Before comedy clubs existed, Sahl began performing at the Hungry I music club in San Francisco in the early 1950s. He differed from other comedians, appearing in casual clothing rather than a suit, skewer-ing popular politicians such as Eisenhower, Joe McCarthy and JFK. Sahl's approach is energetic, tangential, and deep and wide in both social and political scopes, inspiring Woody Allen, George Carlin and countless other comedians. A 1955 performance with Dave Brubeck was recorded and released (without Sahl's permission), selling as Mort Sahl At Sunset, and recently recognized by the Library of Congress as the first stand-up comedy record album. When Kennedy was assassinated in 1963, Sahl regularly targeted the government's official Warren Commission Report during his routines, resulting in the loss of much of Hollywood's support, while maintaining audience popularity with college tours and a best-selling book, Heartland. Sahl is the longest active performing American social satirist, spanning sixty years.

CASINO BALLROOM
169 Ocean Boulevard
Hampton Beach, NH

BILL COSBY — August 16. Over the past century, few entertainers have achieved the legendary status of William H. Cosby Jr. His successes span five decades and virtually all media, remarkable accomplishments for a kid who emerged from humble beginnings in a Philly project. In the 1960s, his stand-up act was a coast-to-coast sensation, spawning a string of hilarious, best-selling comedy albums, which went on to win eight Gold Records, five Platinum records and five Grammy Awards. His role on TV's I Spy made him the first African-American to co-star in a dramatic series, breaking television's racial barrier and winning three Emmy Awards. In the 1980s, he again rocked the television world with the The Cosby Show, a gentle, whimsical and hugely successful series that single-handedly revived the family sitcom (and rescued NBC). With hit movies like Uptown Saturday Night and best-selling books like Fatherhood, Bill Cosby is quite simply a national treasure with the unique ability to touch people's hearts.

WILBUR THEATRE
246 Tremont Street, Boston
617-248-9700

www.TheWilburTheatre.com
#NOFILTER — August 15. YouTube's punniest women are putting on a live comedy show! Will Grace comment on comments? Will Hannah cook? Will Mamrie already be passed out by 4? Who knows! No editing, no censors, #NOFILTER. Starring Grace Helbig, Hannah Hart, and Mamrie Hart! Effervescent comedian Hannah Hart is the creator and star of "My Drunk Kitchen", a web series about libation and liberty in the state of post-modern America. Grace Helbig is a comedian, actress and video blogger. She's the creator and star of the IAWTV and Streamy award winning web series "DailyGrace" with over a million subscribers. Mamrie Hart is a comedic writer and performer living in Brooklyn, NY. Originally from a one stop light town in North Carolina, she can now be found being ridiculous on the internet.

MUSEUMS

MUSEUM OF SCIENCE
1 Science Park, Boston, MA

PANDAS: THE JOURNEY HOME — Ongoing until Fall. Pandas are a lovable, iconic, and — unfortunately — highly endangered species. In Pandas: The Journey Home, meet the dedicated team working tirelessly to save these captivating creatures from extinction. Filmmakers were granted unprecedented access to the China Conservation and Research Center for the Giant Panda to tell the story of our furry friends. The pandas' fascinating habits and unique personalities will leave you with a huge appreciation for the animals and the individuals working to protect them. Witness an incredible story of survival and fall in love with these black and white gentle giants.

JOURNEY TO THE SOUTH PACIFIC — Ongoing until Fall. Narrated by Academy Award-winner Cate Blanchett, Journey to the South Pacific takes filmgoers on a breathtaking IMAX adventure to the lush tropical islands of remote West Papua, where life flourishes above and below sea level. Join Jawi, a young islander, on a journey of discovery as you encounter whale sharks, sea turtles, manta rays, and other iconic creatures of the deep. Home to more than 2,000 species of aquatic life, this exotic locale features the most diverse marine ecosystem on Earth. An uplifting story of hope and celebration, Journey to the South Pacific highlights the importance of living in balance with the ocean planet we all call home.

ORPHEUM THEATER
1 Hamilton Place, Boston
617-482-0106

www.orpheum-theater.com
RODRIGO Y GABRIELA — October 29. Before they became the most visible flamenco duo of the early 2000s, guitarists Rodrigo Sanchez and Gabriela Quintero bonded over heavy metal while growing up in Mexico City. They combined their talents for a time in the metal group Tierra Acida, playing around D.F. in the roughest clubs the city had to offer. In 2004 Rodrigo y Gabriela became the newest fixture of the world music circuit, known for their nimble-fingered guitar work and diverse background (few flamenco guitarists could boast a background in metal music). Their third album, Rodrigo y Gabriela, was released in 2006 and debuted atop the Irish charts, beating out Arctic Monkeys for the number one spot. They continued to tour, making their way through Japan and America, and 11:11 expanded their discography upon its 2009 release. In 2011, they collaborated with film composer Hans Zimmer on the score for Pirates of the Caribbean: On Stranger Tides, which was released in May that year.

EXTRA Innings

by Sal Giarattani

Don Drysdale
Cy Young Pitching Staff
This year, after the Tigers picked up David Price from the Rays, it made the Tigers the first team to have three straight Cy Young winners on the same staff. Justin Verlander was the 2011 Cy Young winner going 24-5 with a 2.40 ERA. David Price with the Rays was the 2012 winner going 20-5 with a 2.56 ERA. Finally, Max Scherzer won last year with a 21-3 record and a 2.90 ERA.

I remember back in the '60s when the LA Dodgers had both Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale in their rotation. Drysdale won the Cy Young in 1962 going 25-9 with a 2.83 ERA. The following year, Koufax won the prize going 25-5 with a 1.88 ERA.

In the '70s, I can remember the NY Yankees had both Sparky Lyle and Ron Guidry. Sparky won the Cy as an ace relief pitcher going 13-5 with 26 saves in 1977. In 1978, Guidry looked like Superman going 25-3 with a 1.74 ERA to earn his Cy.

Is Owens the Future?
Henry Owens recently

Ron Guidry (nicknamed "Louisiana Lightning" and "Gator")
earned honors from Baseball America by being named best pitching prospect in Double A. He will probably start off 2015 with Triple A Pawtucket Red Sox before surely heading to Fenway, quite quickly, say most who know of Owens. This year with the Portland Sea-Dogs going 14-4 with 128 strikeouts in 121 innings. He reminds me of Roger Clemens when he made his Major League debut in 1984. I see big things for Henry Owens.

Thank God Doubront is Gone
Personally, I was always suspect of Felix Doubront even after he pitched a good game because he wasn't really consistent. You never knew which Doubront was on the mound. Often he reminded me of Alfredo Aceves and don't get me started on him. I hate legends in their own mind. Enough said.
I Like Rubby De La Rosa
The 2012 trade that sent Josh Beckett, Carl Crawford, Adrian Gonzales and Nick

Punto to the LA Dodgers in exchange for five players including De La Rosa is now looking quite promising with De La Rosa seemingly to become an important part of the 2015 Red Sox.

Masterson Still Looking to Land Somewhere
Soon to be free agent Justin Masterson got himself traded by the Indians to the Cardinals because free agency was approaching for him and the Indians wanted something in return for him. This season has not been kind to the 29-year-old hurler going 4-6 with a 5.51 "OUCH" ERA.
The former Red Sox pitcher might even find himself back in Boston at season's end. He still could provide some good middle inning relief but only if the price is right.

2 pounds squid (calamari, already cleaned)	3 tablespoons softened butter or margarine
20 crushed Hi-Ho or Ritz-type crackers	Paprika (optional)

With a knife or scissors, separate tentacles from each calamari. Cut tentacles into one-inch portions. Wash calamari and tentacles separately and drain before placing in separate bowls.

STUFFING: In another bowl, crush crackers, add softened butter or margarine of choice and blend into cracker crumbs. Add tentacle portions, mix thoroughly, and set aside.

Line bottom of a 9" x 9" baking dish with vegetable spray or butter.

Using a teaspoon, fill the calamari cavity halfway with stuffing mixture. Place stuffed calamari side by side in baking dish. Spread any remaining stuffing mixture over them. Top calamari with a dab of margarine or butter. Cover and bake in a preheated 375°F oven for about twenty to twenty-five minutes or until fork tender. They will shrink in size as they bake.

OPTIONAL: Sprinkle paprika lightly over calamari prior to baking.

NOTE: Mama pleased us with many different Calamari recipes during the year, particularly in Lent.

THE TRANSFORMATION OF THE ITALIAN PROVINCES.
Over the past 23 years the idea of doing away with the established provinces may have, at last, found a realistic fulfillment. The last project to change the old provinces called for the establishment of "Metropolitan Cities." A Bill was discussed at a meeting of the Council of Ministers, which would change the present institutional system entirely. At last we may learn that large, populated cities will become "Metropolitan Cities," (or centers), an idea that was originally talked about in 1990. A union of Mayor's towns may now occur, hopefully creating a second level of communities capable of performing more efficiently as local administrations. The original intent was to reduce the number of politicians as well as politics! On January 1, 2015 the new law will become operative and the present provinces ought to cease to exist and the new "Metropolitan Cities" ready to emerge as organized entities. These centers are: Torino, Milano, Venezia, Genova, Bologna, Firenze, Bari, Napoli and Reggio Calabria.
The Metropolitan City of Rome, as the capital of the nation, will function as a special entity. It seems to be an easy process, but we all know how simple operations can become complex in the hands of the Italian bureaucracy!

HOW THE MAFIA THREATENS ROME'S SANE ECONOMY.
The Mafia's business activities continue an ever-increasing process of 'merging' into the local businesses, a move that has raised serious concern within the authorities. To stop the Mafia's pressing 'incursions' into the local businesses strong with their available large capital, such as restaurants, department stores, etc., the National Police, the Guardia di Finanza (Fiscal Police) recently launched a raid to protect local businesses.
Taken by surprise, the criminals were hit early one morning. At least 51 people were arrested, giving a serious blow to two organized families, the Fasciani-Triassi clans. They were ready to take control of a few businesses by purchasing some stock, and later taking it over entirely! The Police authorities' actions were positive. The City of Rome's Mayor, Dr. Ignazio Marino (a world-famous transplantation surgeon) had expressed his preoccupation over the aggressive financial activities of the organized criminal families aim at taking over legitimate businesses and upsetting the lives of honest citizens. Mayor Marino will do whatever necessary to protect the city's small businesses from the Mafia's infiltration tactics.

Nanna & Babbononno

by John Christoforo

A Nostalgic Remembrance

A while back, I was talking about a bunch of us having a backyard barbecue. When I was a kid, the men on our block of Eutaw Street would plan a gathering at the house next door to ours, 76 Eutaw Street. I believe it was owned by a man named Mando Sinibaldi. He, Dad and Ralph Manfredonia, the landlord of our house at 74, sat down one night and planned a middle of the week shindig that would include the families that were close. Everyone would chip in and they would consider the cost of steaks, sausages, potato salad, corn on the cob, salad, desert, and beer and wine. If the cost per family was approved by the head of each clan, the preliminaries would begin. Let's see, there would be Mom and Dad, Mando Sinibaldi, his wife Reenie, Ralph and Grace Manfredonia, Joe Balabona and his wife, Danny and Rose Gallo, Bert and Mary Marotta, Sal and Angie Romano, Libby and Ann Annise, Nanna and Babbononno, some of the Pedro family from across the street and all us kids. With the youngsters included, it brought the total to well over 30 people. This wasn't planned to be a block party, just the closest families on our block of Eutaw Street. If anyone reading this was part of that crowd and not mentioned, please forgive me.

Most of us kids were 10 or 12 years old around then, and I've long since lost touch with all of them. My closest childhood friends, John Manfredonia, and Bob Romano, are long gone. I'm aware of where the rest of the Manfredonia family is, due to maintaining contact to some degree. The rest of the children of the families mentioned above, I have no idea what became of them, but we were there for that backyard barbecue, and several others that took place in the warm weather.

At least once per summer, Babbononno and Zi'Antonio Ceruolo would plan a cookout for our families. Zi'Antonio was Nanna's oldest brother and Babbononno's best friend. Usually, the cookout would take place in a central location, the picnic area at Mystic Lake. Many members of the family still lived in East Boston and the North End, but the rest resided in Medford, Revere, and Saugus. Dad would reserve a barbecue pit and a picnic bench or two, as was necessary and the invitations would be sent out via phone calls or by visiting the families.

Now, American cookouts are a tradition in the U.S., but we did it Italian style. Dad was always the cook (I think he missed his calling. He was as good a cook as he was a musician.) He would figure out how many steaks, pounds of sausage, chunks of lamb and slabs of pork ribs were necessary to feed the number of relatives who had said yes to the invite. Each of the ladies were given a list of things they would have to make or buy that accompanied the meat, and the rest of the men would consider how much beer, wine and hard liquor would be necessary. Above and beyond this, the women of our extended family would cook. As an example, Nanna might make ravioli and gravy. Zi'Antonio's wife, my great aunt Zi'Mariuccia, would make cutlets and vegetables, Mom would bring the fixings for a salad and an antipasto. Others would be assigned things to bring, like pastries, pots and pans and eating utensils. Of course, Zi'Antonio would have several gallons of his homemade wine, both red and white. A cousin-in-law of my mother's, Al Beatrice, would be in charge of the hard stuff and the soda for the kids.

The anticipation would build up as the picnic day approached, with everyone praying to St. Anthony for good weather. Our side was usually well represented. Two out of three of Mom's brothers would be there, with their kids. Zi'Antonio and Zi'Mariuccia had nine children and only two or three would join us with their children. Nanna's sisters and their husbands would show up, but usually not with their adult children, just alone. I would await my two cousins, Anthony and Ralph Pepe. They were about my age, and although 2nd cousins, were my closest relatives at that time. As soon as they arrived with their parents, all thoughts of a picnic would leave us as Mystic Lake was a few yards away and there was a public beach. With Anthony and Ralph's older sister, Lulu, watching over us, we would head for the water and not come out until an adult would drag us back to a picnic bench because the food was ready.

While we were splashing at the water's edge, Dad and one or two of the adults would cook the meat that were supposed to be the main sources of food for the barbecue. Once the steaks, sausages, chunks of lamb and pork ribs were ready, the picnic tables were covered by red and white checkered oilcloth tablecloths. Place settings were already situated for seated dining, and serving dishes filled with ravioli, gravy, salad, vegetables, cold cuts and cheeses lined the center of the tables. They often had to be moved to make room for the serving dish filled with sizzling meat just off the grill.

Even though this was a cookout, there were no hotdogs or burger buns. The bread was Italian and it, too, was on the table within reach of the adult population.

The family would begin with the cheeses, cold cuts, marinated mushrooms, marinated artichoke hearts, olives, hot peppers and chunks of bread. Zi'Antonio would fill everyone's glass with wine to help wash down the food. The next course was the pasta, then the meat that Dad had cooked accompanied by vegetables, and later salad. We kids would wolf down our food as fast as we could and attempt to return to the lake. It was then we would hear the famous saying, "You kids can't go in the water for an hour after eating, or you'll get stomach cramps and drown just like your cousin." We would obey, but we never found out who this cousin was that drowned by not obeying his mother.

After everyone had eaten and downed the wine, beer and soda that was available, the men would decide to engage in a sports activity. Most traditional American picnics find the games of baseball or softball an entertaining follow up to eating and drinking, but we were Italian. Out would come the set of bocce balls, and an imaginary court would be outlined. Teams would be picked and the men, with gallons of wine would play bocce. Of course, the women would clean up. They were Italian, and that was their job. (Don't tell my wife I said that.)

Late in the afternoon, everyone, except us kids, would be tired and blankets might be spread out for relaxing in a horizontal position. For those not prone to an afternoon siesta, they would bring out the decks of cards. Italian card games of Scopa, Briscola and Sette Bello would be played by the older men. If Dad or my uncles played cards, Whist or Hearts were their fancy. The ladies would sit on the benches and gossip. We kids would anticipate the end of the hour following eating, so we could return to splashing in the waters of Mystic Lake.

When it was time to leave, everyone would pick up their belongings and say goodbye to one another. This would take an hour due to hugs and kisses that accompanied the exit salutations. We kids would be dried off and stuffed into the backseats of our father's cars. Within five minutes, we would be asleep. The same could be said of Babbononno and his generation. For them, it was too much wine. That's the way it was, and I loved every minute. GOD BLESS AMERICA.

There will also be a sustainable waste management option for you to look in on. You will get the opportunity to read about festival sponsor "Save That Stuff" and the amazing waste management systems they have in place to turn your waste into art or other recycled materials. They also support zero waste events like the Boston Local Food Festival!

The rebuilding of Boston has been such a great asset to the populations and surrounding suburbs and an event like this is one to appreciate. Check out more about this year's festival at BostonLocalFoodFestival.org.

A Very Special Tasty Treat ... Don't miss the Fifth Annual Brew at the Zoo on August 16th at Franklin Park Zoo from 3:30 pm-7:30 pm.

Brew at the Zoo is a beer tasting event that features stations hosted by local breweries and restaurants — as well as an opportunity to stroll among the animals at Franklin Park Zoo. This year is the first year that the entire Zoo will be open for the event! Sip some delicious brews and visit with western lowland gorillas, ring-tailed lemurs, ocelots, pygmy hippos, and other species in the Zoo's Tropical Forest Pavilion, as well as giraffes, zebras, kangaroos and many other animals. Guests will also have the opportunity to visit Aussie Aviary, a seasonal free-flight exhibit featuring brightly-colored budgies! Participating will be 45 different breweries and restaurants and music will be provided by DJ BK.

Proceeds from Brew at the Zoo will support the operation and continued growth of Franklin Park Zoo, its education programs and conservation initiatives. What a better way to give back to the community than to grab a brew at the zoo! Please note: This event is 21+.

Franklin Park Zoo is located at One Franklin Park Road, Boston.

and her uncle Caius supported this decision and encouraged her to keep her commitment to Christ. In the meantime, her two non-Christian uncles, Claudius and Maximus, were converted to Christianity. The General Maxentius then came to the house, believing he could persuade Susanna to marry him. Susanna's refusal soon led to the suspicion that she and other members of her family might be Christians. The Roman Consul Mace-donius then called Susanna to the Roman Forum and asked her to prove her loyalty to the state by performing an act of worship before the god Jupiter. She refused, confirming the fact that both she and other members of her family might well be Christian. There was no attempt to arrest her however, as she was a member of the Emperor's family.

Boxing Ringside

WITH BOBBY FRANKLIN

TED CARROLL Boxing Illustrator and Artist

Ted Carroll with self portrait.

If you are my age or older and you grew up reading Ring Magazine, you saw the work of the great artist Ted Carroll. Ted would have a piece in each month's issue and they were always good. At one point he did a monthly series of portraits of all the heavyweight champions. I used to try to copy them as I loved his work.

Ted began working for Ring in 1935, he also did publicity drawings for Madison Square Garden and contributed illustrations for Dan Parker's columns in the New York Mirror.

A while back I received a note from Dan Cuoco, Director of the International Boxing Research Organization, asking members if they knew if any photos of Ted Carroll existed. Ted was about to be inducted into the International Boxing Hall of Fame, and it turned out nobody could find a picture of him. There was also a bit of a secret about Ted that few people knew, but that I learned as a kid; Ted Carroll was African American. I began to wonder if that was the reason his photo had not been published, or was it simply because he was a very modest man. I went to work and managed to come up with some pictures of him that were published in an early edition of Ebony Magazine. One very interesting one is of Ted posing in front of a self-portrait he did. It reminds me a bit of the famous Norman Rockwell self-portrait.

In a tribute written by Dan Daniel upon Ted's death in 1973 at the age of 69, we learn that Ted never attended college, was self taught, admired Samuel Johnson and Boswell, Goldsmith, Dickens, and Faulkner. Ted was a very good basketball player when young and went on to do some coaching. He was largely self-taught. Daniels believed Carroll felt he was held back by his color, and describes him as "... an able man, a just man, a man militant for the Negro but a man of unruffled temper."

Ted, who was an Army veteran, was known for wearing bow ties. He lived on the sixth floor of a building with no elevator in Harlem, and did his work there. He considered Ray Robinson the greatest fighter who ever lived, and Willie Pep the cleverest.

I think this quote from Ted regarding boxers says a lot about the man's understanding of the sport: "Fighters are mostly meek men trying to make it the hard way. Meek men, but they are endowed with a world of courage. Fighting is the toughest dollar in sports." I think that quote, with art being substituted for boxing, would apply to Ted Carroll. He was also a meek man who was filled with courage. A man who became great at his craft in spite of the road blocks that were put up in front of him. Did he become angry because of this unfairness? Of course, but he did not become bitter.

Shortly before Ted's death, Dan Daniel requested that Howard University bestow an honorary degree upon him. That never happened, but it is never too late and Ted Carroll has certainly earned that distinction.

Ted Carroll deserves more recognition than he has received. I will continue to do research on him with the hope of one day being able to put together a more detailed piece about his life. If any of my readers are in possession of any of his work or know anything about him, please let me know.

HOOPS and HOCKEY in the HUB

by Richard Preiss

CIRCLE THE DATE — It has the makings of one memorable evening, it does. We are referring, of course, to Tuesday, November 4th — and not because it will be Election Day.

Over on Causeway Street, the people that populate Bruins Nation will be voting with their feet as they fill the Garden to capacity to welcome back the ever popular Shawn Thornton to the Hub.

The former "enforcer" for the Bruins — who, in reality, was a gentleman off the ice — will make his return as a member of the Florida Panthers. He played for the Bruins for the past seven years but was not offered a new contract this summer by B's GM Peter Chiarelli.

So, as a free agent in the 30-team NHL, you knew some franchise would come calling. Turns out it was the Panthers who signed him up for the next two seasons.

So, the unofficial "Shawn Thornton Night" should be quite memorable as the popular former member of the B's fourth line skates against many of the players that were his teammates for several seasons.

GIVE ME THAT OLDTIME GAME — It's that time of year again — time for one of the regional rituals of summer.

We speak, of course of The Oldtime Baseball Game, which in its 21st annual incarnation, will be played once again at St. Peter's Field on Sherman Street in North Cambridge starting at 7:00 pm on August 25th.

The game features college players from the Boston area — with an occasional retired Major League player sometimes putting in an appearance — in a classic nine inning contest that so often is missing in current amateur baseball leagues that have chosen the shorter seven inning format.

In addition, all players wear individualized flannel uniforms that represent virtually every era in baseball history, including classic teams such as the Boston Braves, the St. Louis Browns and the Brooklyn Dodgers. There's even a uniform from a fictitious team — the New York Knights — highlighted in the baseball film The Natural.

You might even see a future Major League star since 25 players from the previous 20 games have gone to careers in professional baseball.

The Oldtime Baseball Game has always been involved with charities and this year is no exception with the ALS Therapy Development Institute that is headquartered in Cambridge being designated the 2014 partner.

More than 86 cents of each dollar raised is spent on the Institute's mission — to discover and develop treatments for ALS — the illness that was brought into the public's mind by former Yankee star Lou Gehrig in the late 1930s. In 2014 there is still no cure or effective treatment.

P.K. SUBBAN SIGNS — If there was any question whether Malcolm Subban, the goalie for the Providence Bruins and a projected future netminder for the parent club on Causeway Street, would lead a life free of financial stress, it was virtually erased earlier this month when his brother — P.K. Subban — signed an eight year, $72 million contract with the Montreal Canadiens.

Why? We're sure that if it ever comes to it, P.K. would certainly take care of his younger brother if need be. Of course, that might not ever be necessary if Malcolm, a first round pick by the B's in the 2012 NHL Draft, eventually progresses to the point where he takes over the duties between the pipes in Boston.

But that might not be for some time, though, given that Tuukka Rask won the Vezina Trophy (best goalie in the regular season) for his performance during the 2013-2014 campaign.

As for P.K., a solid defenseman who will earn an average of $9 million per season over the life of the contract, it represents security and a reward for a job well done. The new contract makes him one of the highest paid players in the NHL.

Playing in all 82 regular season games last season, he scored 10 goals and added 43 assists for a total of 53 points. He then added 14 goals in 17 playoff games — and was an absolute thorn in the side of the Bruins who were eliminated from the Stanley Cup Playoffs by the arch-rival Canadiens in seven games. He also was a member of Canada's Olympic team that won the gold medal this past winter in Sochi, Russia.

CELTICS PLAYER POINTS — Over the next few weeks we'll present some facts about current Celtics players that many fans may not know. According to the Celtics web site: Center Kelly Olynyk (who grew up in Canada and is entering his second year with the C's) played quarterback for his high school football team — and sustained a broken arm during a 2007 playoff game. But basketball was always the game in the family. His mother Arlene was the official scorekeeper for the Toronto Raptors for a decade while his father Ken was the head hoops coach at the University of Toronto for 13 years.

Kelly went to Gonzaga University where he stayed all four years, graduating with a 3.53 GPA. While in college he also played for Canada in the 2010 World Championships when he was just 19 years old. The 7-0 center was named an NBA Rising Star last season during his rookie year with the Celtics — one in which he played in 70 contests while averaging 8.7 points per game and 5.2 rebounds per game.
